Empathy Map

Create an empathy map to understand your customer/user from four perspectives - what they Say, Think, Do, and Feel - in relation to the problem your project addresses. This helps the team build a customer-centric solution.

SAYS • “I find it hard to start conversations with new people at networking events.” • “I don’t know what topics will be relevant to the event or the person.” • “I wish I had smart conversation starters tailored to the event and attendee.”	THINKS • I hope I can make meaningful connections. • What should I talk about to break the ice? • I should prepare better so I don’t miss opportunities. • I need relevant information about the event and the people attending.
Networking Event Participant (Student / Young professional)
DOES • Attends networking events, webinars and conferences. • Looks up attendee or company information • Searches for conversation starter idea online. • Tries to remember talking points and follow up later.	FEELS • Anxious before and during networking events. • Unsure about how to approach new people. • Overwhelmed by the need to make good impressions. • Frustrated when conversations feel awkward or superficial.
